CITY IN BRIEF.

John Kirsh was arrested yesterday for selling liquor on Sunday.

The Indianapolis Chorus Society will give a concert Wednesday night.

Thieves entered the saloon of John Henry, 170 East Washington street, yesterday afternoon and realized $7.

The Sheriff of Shelby County arrived in the city Saturday with a prisoner, and stated that he had no more in his custody. It is probable that this was the first time for many years that the Shelby County Jail has been empty.

William Wempner, a young man well known in this city, died very suddenly of heart disease at his home, on South Delaware street, yesterday morning.

A number of employees at the Malleable Iron Works, at Haughville, indulged in a general row on Saturday afternoon, in which several were badly hurt, and one, James Hutchinson, quite seriously.

Martin Finn, living on South West street, was in some manner struck on the head yesterday morning with a block of wood by a relative. The wound was about three inches in length, and of such a serious nature as to necessitate the attention of a physician.

Tom Ficus was badly cut on the fleshy part of the right hand, between the thumb and index finger, Saturday evening by Tom Hanway. The two men were at work on a stone wall, and in whirling around suddenly the point of Hanway's trowel struck Ficus. The wound is deep and painful.

THE HOMEOPATHS.

NOT A FORGERY.

But Simply an Inquiry for a Missing Partner.

It was reported to the police authorities yesterday that an Illinois man had secured $500 from the firm of Graybill, Middlesworth & Co., of the Union Stockyards, by means of a bogus check, to which he had attached the signatures of two stock dealers of Ellettsville, Ill., with whom the above firm has dealings. The individual who reported the alleged forgery did not go into details, and therefore, the authorities could give very little information to the newspapers relative thereto.

A representative of the Sentinel called at the Sherman House, where Mr. Graybill, the senior member of the firm, boards, only to find that he had gone to Ellettsville. The reporter then visited Mr. A. S. Benson, 873 North Delaware street, who is connected with the firm, who denied that any forgery had been committed. He said that on Wednesday last Mr. Green, of the firm of Green & Clark, Ellettsville, Ill., arrived in the city with a car load of stock, which he turned over to them to dispose of, and which they sold to an Eastern firm, receiving about $700 therefor. Mr. Green was given the proceeds of the sale, and left at once, returning, they supposed, to Ellettsville, but it seems that such was not the case, for a day or two later a telegram was received from Mr. Clark, inquiring about his partner. Green is said to be a drinking man, and his friends are greatly alarmed over his absence.

Death of Stoughton F. Johnson.

Stoughton F. Johnson, the colored child of Elm street, who was shot a week ago last Thursday by a neighbor's boy, named William Nelson, died at an early hour yesterday morning. Nelson was placed under arrest and taken to the Station-house, where he now is. The deceased was a mere child and had gone over to see Nelson on the evening of the shooting. Nelson had a revolver which, after some time spent in examining it, he pointed toward his visitor exclaiming, "Your money or your life," and fired. He said he did not think of the weapon being loaded, and was astonished to see the child roll on the floor unconscious. Examination proved that the ball had entered the brain. The little sufferer afterward recovered consciousness, and his statement was taken by the coroner. It was thought up to Saturday that the child might recover, but it refused nourishment and seemed to desire nothing but sleep. Nelson will go before the Mayor this morning, but it is probable that he will be held until the Grand Jury meets.

Postoffice Changes.

Two or three changes have been made in the working force of the Postoffice, and will go into effect to-day. John R. Thorne has been relieved of any burdens in the office hereafter, and Mr. Wilson, an ex-soldier, has been appointed in his stead. Henry Brown (colored) has also been displaced, and Mr. Draper will assume the duties of his position. It is understood that Scott Turner and Alfred Harrison have declined the positions to which they were appointed.

The Crawfordville Driving Association.

The spring meeting of the Crawfordville Driving Association will take place at Crawfordville, beginning June 3 and concluding on the 6th. A large number of horses have been entered for the several races, and generous prizes are offered.

ATTEMPTED MURDER.

Mandeville Russell, an Ex-Convict, Dangerously Wounds John Fague.

The Cause of the Shooting Involved in Mystery—Statement of the Wounded Man.

The little town of Greenwood, situated in Johnson County, ten miles south of this city, and in which was perpetrated some two months ago a most brutal outrage upon the person of Mrs. Mary E. Smith by three masked scoundrels, was the scene of an attempted murder early yesterday morning, in which Mandeville Russell, an ex-convict, deliberately shot and dangerously wounded John C. Fague. Hearing yesterday that "a man had been shot in Greenwood the night before," a representative of the Sentinel visited the scene and learned the following particulars:

John C. Fague, a man about forty years old, came to Greenwood about a year ago, and was engaged for some time in the manufacture and repair of bed springs. Afterward he turned day laborer, and for six months past has been employed at first one thing and then another, as he could obtain work. During his residence in Greenwood he formed the acquaintance of a Mrs. Mary Berry, a widow, who has been doing his washing. Possibly impressed with her skill in this most necessary art, Fague began to pay her some attention, and was at her residence much oftener and stayed longer than was necessary to settle a wash bill. Saturday night was not an exception in this regard, and between 12 and 1 o'clock Dr. Thomas Curry, a physician of the village, was called up, and saw Fague standing at his door, his shirt covered with blood, and the bleeding man evidently suffering from a serious hurt. Fague said that he had been called out of Mrs. Berry's residence, where he was visiting, and shot by Mandeville Russell, an ex-convict, whose reputation as a fighter has been made by several desperate encounters, in which he has borne a prominent part in the community. The physician's examination proved that a bullet had entered Fague's left breast, about four inches above the nipple, and had ranged outward and backward, producing a painful and dangerous wound. Fague was taken back to the Berry residence and his wound dressed. Yesterday he was suffering considerable pain, but was able to sign an affidavit charging Russell with attempted murder.

Russell being a married man, the reporter failed to see why he should be prowling around at 12 o'clock at night disturbing the billing and cooing of Widow Fague and Widow Berry, and inquiring among the citizens failed to elicit any satisfactory explanation of the matter. To the query, "What were the odds there at such a time?" no one vouchsafed an answer, and the reporter repaired to the Berry residence in search of the information which he could not get from any other source. The wounded man occupied the only bed in the house, and after showing the reporter the wound, and going over the following account of the matter: "I know no reason for the shooting, for I have given Russell no cause of enmity against me. In December last he came here one night and invited me to fight, and when I refused he came into the house and attempted to take me out, but he found me a good man as he was and he didn't succeed. I can't remember night about 8 o'clock after my washing, and about 12 I went out to the pump to get a drink of water and saw a man inside the house. After I re-entered the house, I looked out the window and saw two men on the opposite side of the street. Presently one of them came across and got over the fence into the yard. I then went to the window on the east side of the room and saw two men sitting under the window. I opened the door and went out and asked them what they wanted. They made no reply, and I told them to go away, saying that they had no business loitering around here. At the hour of the night. With that, one of them, whom I recognized as Mandeville Russell, pointed a pistol at me and said: 'Damn you, we'll make you git,' and with that fired. I turned round with the force of the ball that struck me and entered the house, and the men went on their way. I think the other man was Dietrich Hinkle, but will not be positive of that. I was armed with a revolver at the time, but I do not know whether I had it in my hand or not. I know I did not make any attempt to use it. I do not know what he came here for or why he wanted to shoot me. We have never had any trouble except what I have spoken of."

When Mrs. Berry was questioned, she said that she did not see the men in the yard and did not know anything about the shooting. She acknowledged that Mr. Fague was "her beau," but could advance no reason for Russell's action, except "pure devilment and a desire to interfere where he had no business," as she expressed it. She denied that Russell had ever visited her house save the time alluded to by Fague, when he invited the latter out to fight. If a different impression prevails in the community Mrs. Berry is possibly not responsible for it, as she should know who her visitors are. In conversation with the physician, he said that the wound was not necessarily fatal, though it was more dangerous on account of the warm weather. He said the wound was a very painful one, but with good nursing Fague would recover. As stated in the foregoing, Fague is but little known in Greenwood, having been there but one year, but the same can hardly be said of Russell. The latter kept a saloon on the outskirts of the village for two or three years, and during this time was the hero of several desperate fights in which he always came out unscathed, his adversaries, however, fared much worse. Several years ago he was indicted in the Johnson Circuit Court for receiving stolen money, and was sent to the penitentiary, from which he was released by Governor Williams upon condition that he should be sent back if he began to drink again. Russell carried himself very well for a time, but soon got back to his old habits, but not till the full time of his sentence had run out. A warrant was issued for his arrest at a late hour yesterday afternoon, and if he has not left the neighborhood, he is no doubt in custody. As he is known to be a desperate character he will possibly get a penitentiary sentence on general principles for the shooting of Fague, no matter what may be the merits of the trouble between the two.

Indianapolis Talent Abroad.

A night or two ago the store of William Bass, situated near Greenwood, was entered by burglars and a bolt of jeans, some cotton goods and other things stolen. The door was owned by using an iron bar taken from a neighboring blacksmith shop, and the indications all point to the fact that the enterprising cracksmen went from this city. The next morning the track of a light wagon was plainly seen across the woods pasture of a farmer just this side of Greenwood, and in a field was seen the evidences of a horse having been hitched for some time during the night. The people of Greenwood are apparently very well satisfied as to the identity of the thief from certain circumstances, both preceding and succeeding the robbery. Mr. Bass, however, has no means of identifying his goods, and the probabilities are that there will be no prosecution for this offense, but a sharp lookout will be kept for future visits of the suspected party.
